There came very near being another ninth-inning finish of the exasperating sort in the game between Indianapolis and Louisville yesterday, and had it terminated the Indianapolis fans would have felt the sting of the first defeat at home. But luckily the Hoosiers were too far in the lead and the visitors could not send enough men around the circuit during the last chance to materially affect the score. The final result was 5 to 3 in favor of Indianapolis.

The clever bunching of hits in the first the game for the Hoosiers. Jones and Hogriever surprised the crowd by dropping fly and Terry Turner. Score: balls in the latter part of the contest, and O'Brien and Tamsett came to the front with a couple of bad errors. The Colonels tried desperately to win in the last of the ninth, and three bad errors placed them in a position to cause much trouble had hits been more frequent. With only one out, two men on bases and two runs needed to tie the score when Childs went to bat, Manager Watkins called Williams from the slab and substituted Newlin. On the first ball pitched the two Colonels on first and second attempted to commit a daring robbery by advancing an a double steal, but Clymer was caught at third. Childs then hammered a hard one to Newlin, who fell in his attempt to stop the ball. He was up in a minute and threw to first in time to catch the runner, and thus ended what might have proved disastrous for the home

Never before has the Indianapolis team of this year gone to pieces as it did in that nerve-wrecking ninth inning. The crowd wondered for awhile why Williams was taken out of the box, but never considered that Williams was rapidly losing his cunning in the last inning and a couple of hits would have changed the complexion of the score. Newlin went into the game fresh as an Easter lily, and succeeded in depriving Louisville of any chance to win. Prior to that time Williams had pitched an excel- lis. Attendance, 1,200. Score: lent game, and during the entire contest only six hits were made off him. The strain of a long-drawn-out contest was telling on him, and since Indianapolis won everybody was well satisfied that Newlin

FORGOT BRILLIANT PLAYS.

At times the fielding of the Hoosiers was fast and sensational, but the brilliant plays made in the early innings were forgotten in the awful undoing in the last of the ninth. Six errors were made by Indianapolis, which is the season's record for the champions, and three of them came in the ninth. The Hoosiers outbatted the visitors two to one. A left-hand product named McCord faced the Indianapolis team. He appeared to be very easy in the first two innings, but he settled after the second low line for the pennant winners. Mc-Cord was also given very fast and brilliant support, which cut a big figure in the general result all during the contest.

Jones and Kihm led the stick work for Indianapolis, each securing three hits. O'Brien's only hit was a lucky scratch in the first inning, which scored two runs. Both of Hogriever's safe ones figured in the victory, and Fox helped to place Indianapolis on the safe side with a pretty double in the second. Williams helped win his own battle with a single in the Kerwin made two of the six hits credited to Louisville, and one of them figured in the score. The miserable errors charged against the Indianapolis players gave the visitors all of their tallies. The Colonels chalked up one in the last He was out, but by grace of Foreman's decision was credited with a steal. After Odwell went out Sullivan hit to right, Hogriever dropped Schriever's fly, on which Kerwin scored and Sullivan took third. White hit to Williams, retiring at first. Clymer drew a pass, but Martin struck out. Indianapolis added two in the second. After Heydon was retired on an infield chance Williams placed a single in right. Hogriever's single sent Williams to third. Fox's double to left scored Williams. Hogriever scored on Jones's single. Kihm forced Jones and Coulter was easily put out. Childs drew transportation in the second. Mc-Cord drove a fast one to Kihm, who touched first and doubled Childs at second. Kerwin walked and Odwell singled, but Sullivan fouled out to Kihm. With two out in the third Heydon and Williams walked, but Hogriever went out on a fly. In the last half the begs were filled on passes. Two were out when Mc-Cord went to bat. He relieved the strain by striking out. In the sixth Indianapolis got three men on bases, but no one scored. In the last half, with two out, Mc-Cord hit down the first-base line for two bases, but Hogriever got in front of Ker-win's hard line fly.

fly, the runner taking second on the error. After Sullivan went out on a fly to Coulter Hogriever muffed Schriever's fly. White then hit to Kihm, Odwell scoring. The side was retired without further scoring. After the Hoosiers were retired in the eighth there was an exciting time in the last half. Two were out and three on bases when Sullivan went to bat. Williams had saued two passes and Kerwin had singled. Sullivan drove a hard one toward right. Kihm gathered it in and there was a lively race for the sack, Kihm winning, and Kihm singled in the first of the ninth but did not complete the circuit. Things looked very bright in the last of the ninth when lones caught Schriever's fly, but the crowd had a chill when O'Brien fumbled White's easy grounder. Clymer hit to left and Jones let the ball get away from him, permitting White to score and Clymer to reach second. Martin drove a fast one straight into Tamsett's hands. The ball odunced out and the crowd shivered. Then Newlin was sent to the slab and on an attempted double steal Clymer was caught at third. Tamsett blocking him so that he could not slide to the base. Childs was then retired and the agony was over. The

The Reliance, after a morning spin, got under way again at 2:30 p. m., and started off along the Long island shore. There was a twelve-knot wind from the south and a smooth sea-ideal conditions. The Constitution remained at Glen Cove with her mainsail up and headsails in stops until the Reliance was half way back. Then the Belmont boat began to jog back and forth off the cove under mainsail and two headsails. The Reliance was carrying three lower sails and a working topsail and was willing and anxious for a race. When she met the Constitution she was promptly put about and, beam and beam, they started on a reach. They were abeam of each other half a mile or more apart for only half a minute, when, just as it was beginning to look as though the extra canvas of the newer boat was drawing her away, the Constitution came about and headed back toward the cove. The Reliance was kept on her course for a short distance and then squared away for home, reaching her anchorage at 4:30 p. m. In the choppy sea the long bow overhang of the Reliance caused considerable splashing, but did not stop her in the least. In three long ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 2.-A heavy sea capsized the University of Pennsylvania's eight-oared shell in their race to-day on the Severn with the navy's crew and gave to the latter an easy victory. The water was fairly smooth early in the afternoon, but hardly had the crews taken to the water before a stiff breeze started and a heavy sea was soon rolling over the course. feated vesterday afternoon by a score of 11 to 0 at Brookside Park by the Manual Training High School boys, who did the trick so politely there was no cause for dence of which was shown by the visitors

The home team was not long in getting into the spirit of the game and by the end of the third inning was five runs in the lead with the Richmond club looking like a "sure thing that was never heard from. At this period, however, the visitors took a brace and ciphers were the lot of the Training School for three innings. Bohnstadt, who pitched a great game, allowing only four hits, was too much for the men from the Quaker town, even if their fielding had been better. No Richmond man got around the bags. The fireworks was again started in the seventh and the game ended 11 to 0.

Marrow was hit frequently by the Training School players. The feature of the game was a double play by Diddle and Gray. The former pulled down a long fly in center and by a fine throw caught a man off first. Week, Meyers and Wilson played a good game for Richmond, and Diddel, Dow and Bohnstadt, who struck out eight men, did the best work on the M. T. H. S. side.
